Argentina Morning View

- IN A NUTSHELL: The FdT's internal dispute escalated in the past few weeks, with Kirchnerism dialing up its attacks on Mr. Fernandez, who's increasingly signaling his intent to run for reelection in a context where the rest of Peronism is failing to find a better candidate.
- RATIONALE: Mr. Massa's oasis seems to be increasingly under siege. Since the end of the Soy Dollar 2.0, the FX market has been turning increasingly hostile for the BCRA, which has sold over USD300mn YTD and lost a little over USD3bn in gross reserves. The official FX fixing continues to slide at a pace above 100% annualized, and the BCS continued to weaken despite the government purchasing a little over USD1bn in notional value in the repurchase (is it done? Or was it USD1bn in cash value?). Inflation is re-accelerating, with January's high-frequency gauge pointing towards a 5.5%mom print and a substantial uptick in the statistical carry at the start of February. The deterioration of the macro environment is creating a political conundrum. While most of the red circle and Peronism are increasingly counting on Mr. Massa eventually declaring his decision to run for the presidency, a weaker FX market and higher inflation are conspiring against creating the conditions that he would need to make his candidacy viable. We still believe that Mr. Massa would prefer to sit the election out rather than face a landslide defeat. In this context, he needs an improvement in economic conditions to cement the expectations that his program created and turn them into votes. That's not materializing for the time being.

This situation puts Mrs. Kirchner and the rest of Peronism between a rock and a hard place. In the FdT space, CFK leads voting intention with about 30%, and Mr. Massa comes second with about 25-27%, retaining about 80-90% of CFK's vote. With CFK seemingly not running, and economic conditions not fostering Mr. Massa's candidacy, the FdT is increasingly striving to find an alternative candidate. Three names came up this week: Messers. De Pedro, Capitanich, and Kicillof. Mr. Kicillof, who, according to polls, remains the best proxy for CFK, wants nothing to do with a presidential run, preferring to reelect as PBA Governor. Mr. Capitanich has long vied the top spot of the ticket, but his polling figures remain extremely weak, leaving Mr. De Pedro as the man to watch. Mr. De Pedro is Mr. Kirchner's second in command in La Campora and a longstanding favorite for CFK. He has been signaling his willingness to run, trying to approach the establishment over the past few months and appear as a moderate face of Kirchnerism. Like Mr. Capitanich, Mr. De Pedro's figures remain weak. In this context, it is unsurprising that Mr. Scioli continues to lurk in the shadows, waiting for the opportunity to take a new job at the top job.

To the Kirchners' chagrin, the barren field of candidates in the FdT is emboldening Mr. Fernandez to run for reelection. Since the end of 2022, Mr. Fernandez has been bombarding the TV and social media with spots trying to reframe his Administration, blaming Mr. Macri, the war, COVID, the Supreme Court, the media, and the freemasons for every misstep and the dismal results of his tenure. Polls suggest that Mr. Fernandez has zero chance of getting reelected and would probably not survive a primary challenge. Still, his insistence on going into a primary, even if it means being challenged potentially by his Home Minister and his Economy Minister, remains a challenge to Mrs. Kirchner's leadership over Peronism.

With her leadership challenged, Mrs. Kirchner has taken off the gloves. Mr. De Pedro leaked off the record that the President had betrayed him. Mr. Kirchner went on TV to say that Mr. Fernandez was a disappointment. Mr. Larroque reminded Mr. Fernandez that he served at Mrs. Kirchner's pleasure. In the meantime, Congress is hung debating an impeachment of the supreme court that's not heading anywhere, freezing the economic agenda that Mr. Massa needs passed to navigate through 2023 (the tax amnesty as the top priority). In other words, the disarray in the FdT is conspiring against the chances that Mr. Massa may end up running.
